What we do

COVID-19 has disrupted our nation's systems for social support, communications, and health care, revealing the critical importance of home internet as a lifeline for older adults. Yet nearly 22 million seniors over the age of 65 lack wireline broadband access at home, which can lead to potentially serious consequences. Aging Connected is a national, cross-sector campaign to bridge the digital divide and help older adults access essential public health information, social services, online community, and

Humana Foundation

With generous support from the Humana Foundation, we have a goal of reaching one million seniors by June 2022. By connecting and coordinating the efforts of telecommunications companies, nonprofit senior services providers, and public sector agencies, we aim to increase broadband connectivity among older adults and help seniors

If You Represent a Business

Become an Aging Connected consortium member

Telecommunications providers can join the Aging Connected campaign through three levels of participation: Consortium Member, Impact Partner, and Sponsoring Partner. Each level offers differing types of involvement and inclusion on branding, strategy, and communications efforts.

If You Represent a Community Organization

Spread the word to seniors in your area

Aging Connected can provide your organization with tools and resources to help older adults in your area connect with low-cost internet options and thrive online through free Senior Planet programs. Participating organizations will receive a partner toolkit with information and materials to help them get started.

If You Are an Older Adult or Caretaker

Find low-cost internet options in your area and get connected with free Senior Planet resources

If you are or care for one of the millions of older adults without access to high-speed internet, you can use our zip code lookup tool to find low-cost internet options that are available in your area. Our Stuck at Home Guide on Senior Planet also provides information about connecting to affordable broadband internet service options.
